

Parts of Speech

Ian Shepherd

June 24, 2021

Outline

- Warm up: Discussion
- Parts of Speech
- Grammar: Word order in English
- Practice Activity: Name the parts of speech

Warm up: What do you know?

1. How many parts of speech are there in English?
2. Can you name them?
3. Do you know the parts of speech in your first language?
4. Why should we learn the parts of speech?

Parts of Speech

1. Nouns
2. Verbs
3. Adjectives
4. Adverbs
5. Determiners
6. Pronouns
7. Prepositions
8. Conjunctions
9. Interjections

Nouns

Nouns are people, things, animals, or ideas.

They can be:

- Concrete or Abstract
- Proper or Common
- Countable or Uncountable

Examples:

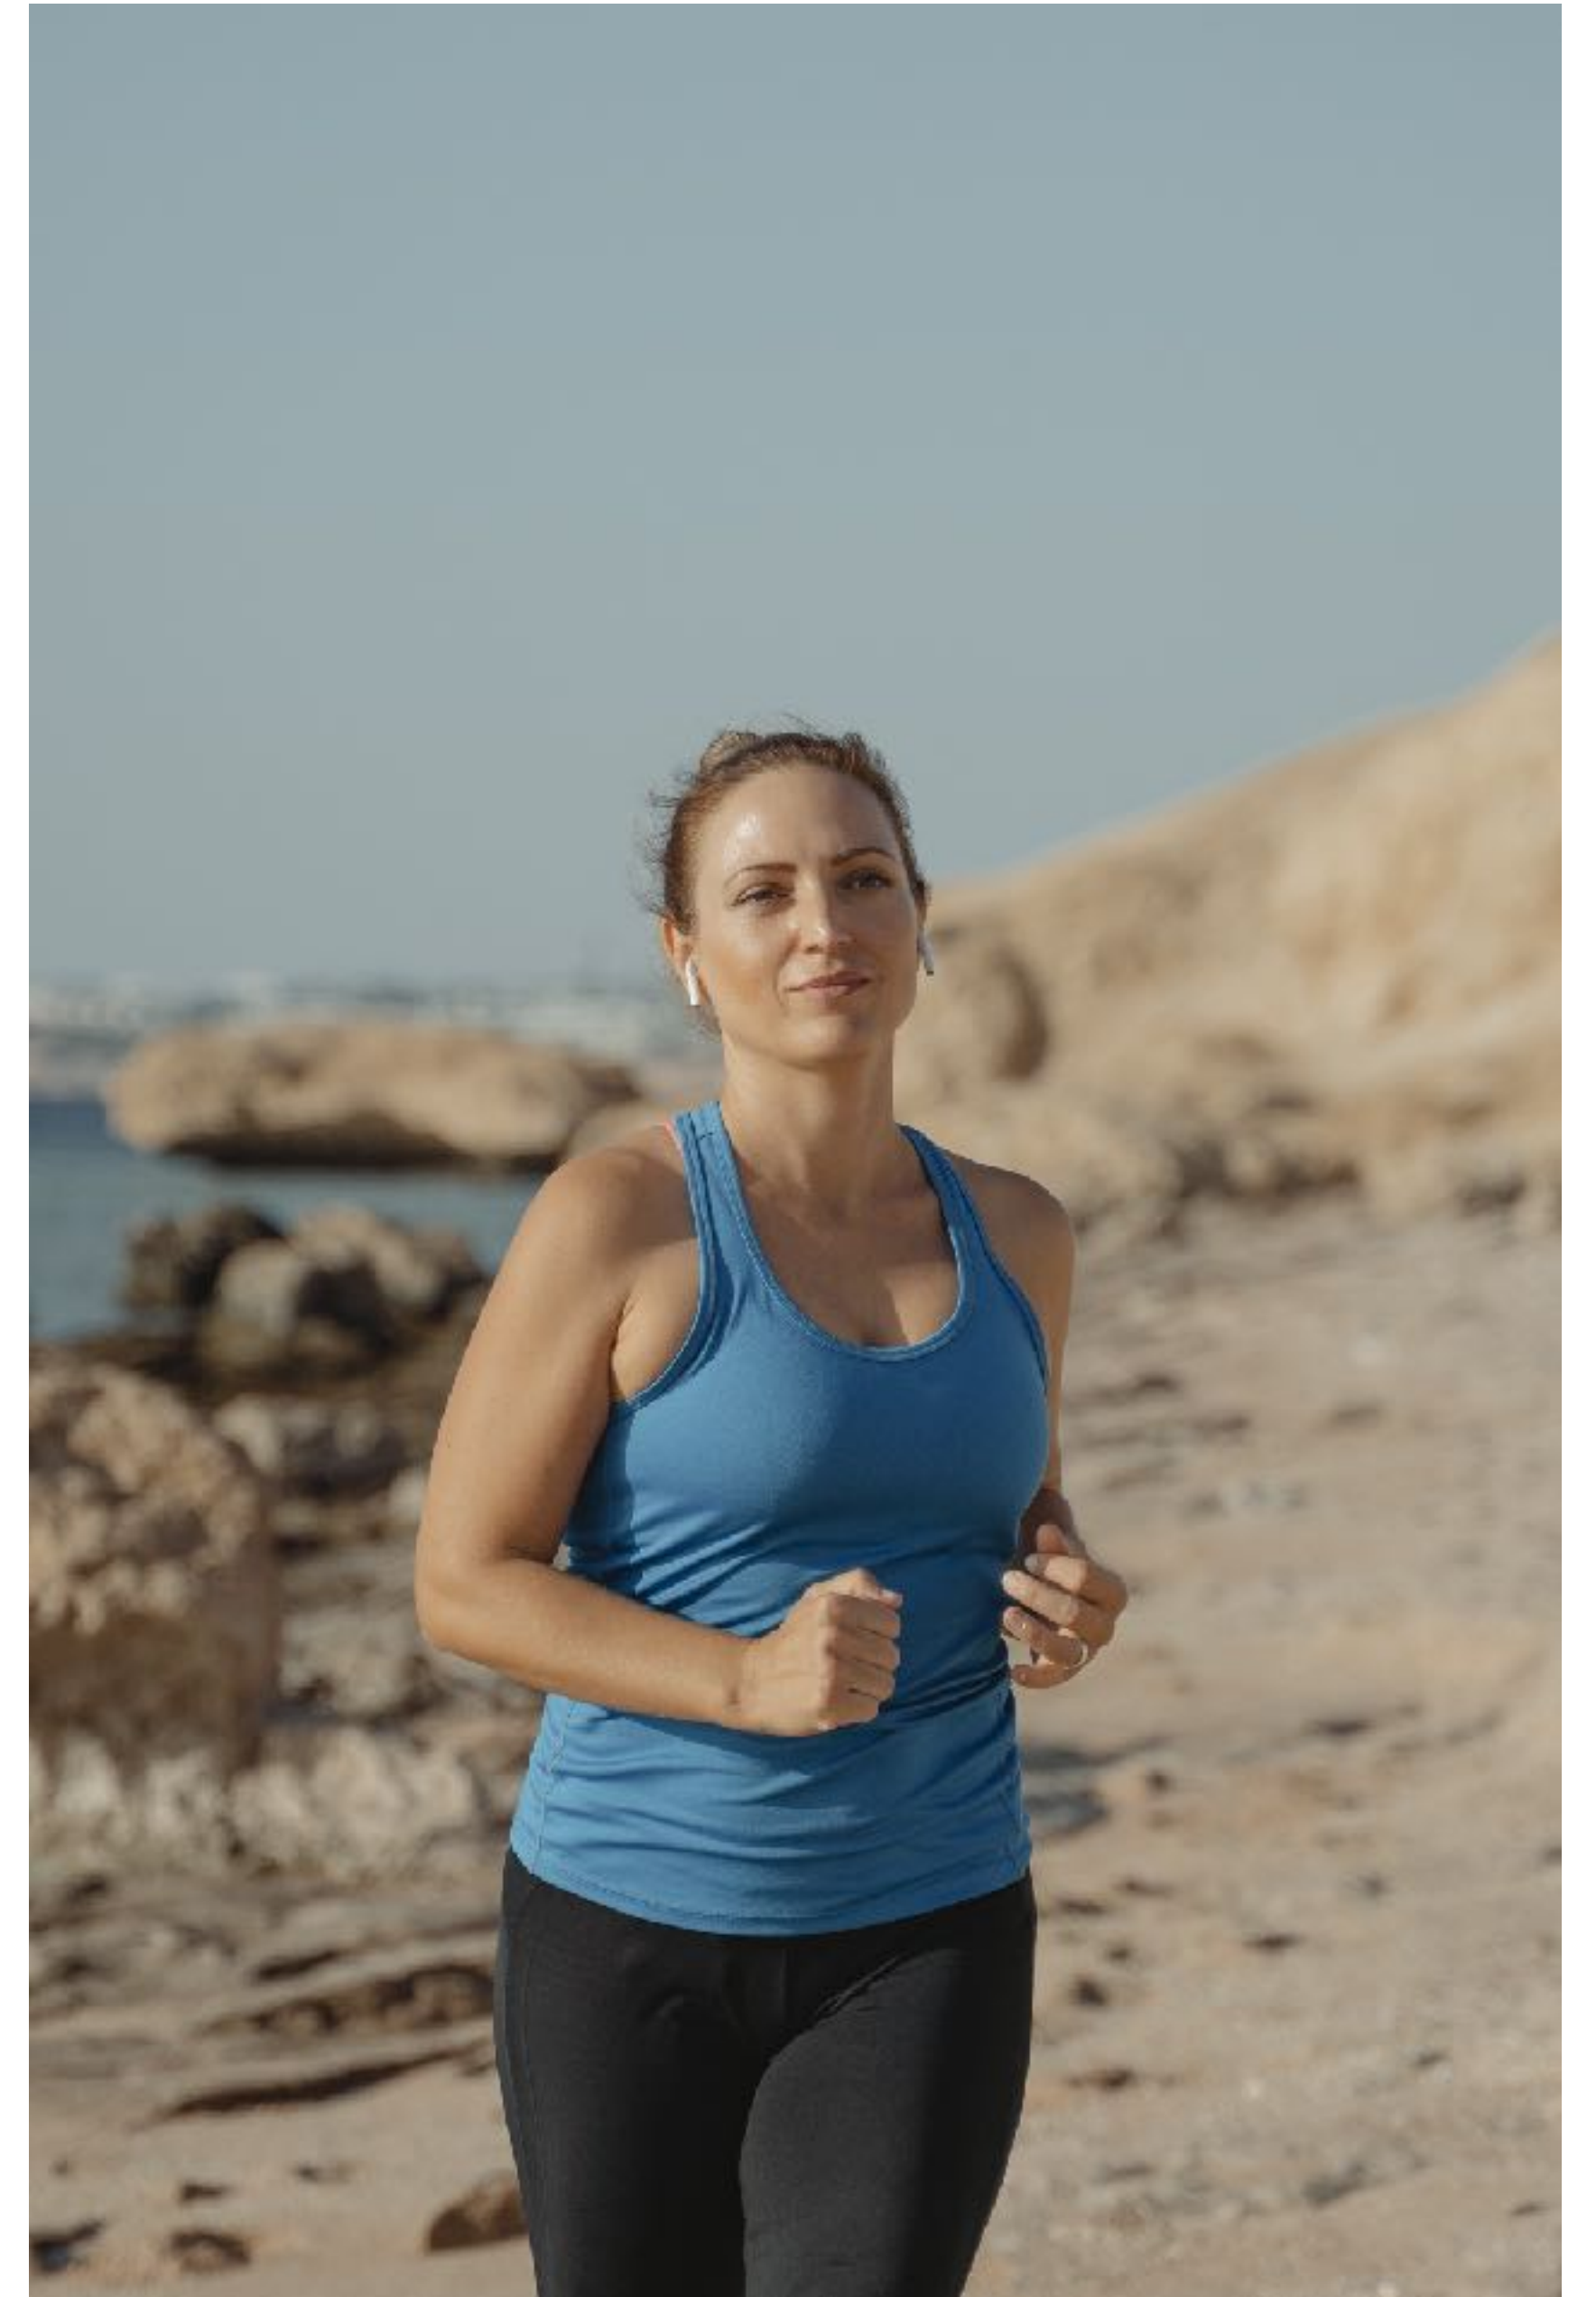

Verbs

Verbs are actions or states.

- Verbs can be:
 - Action verbs
 - Modal or helping verbs
 - Auxiliary or linking verbs

Examples:

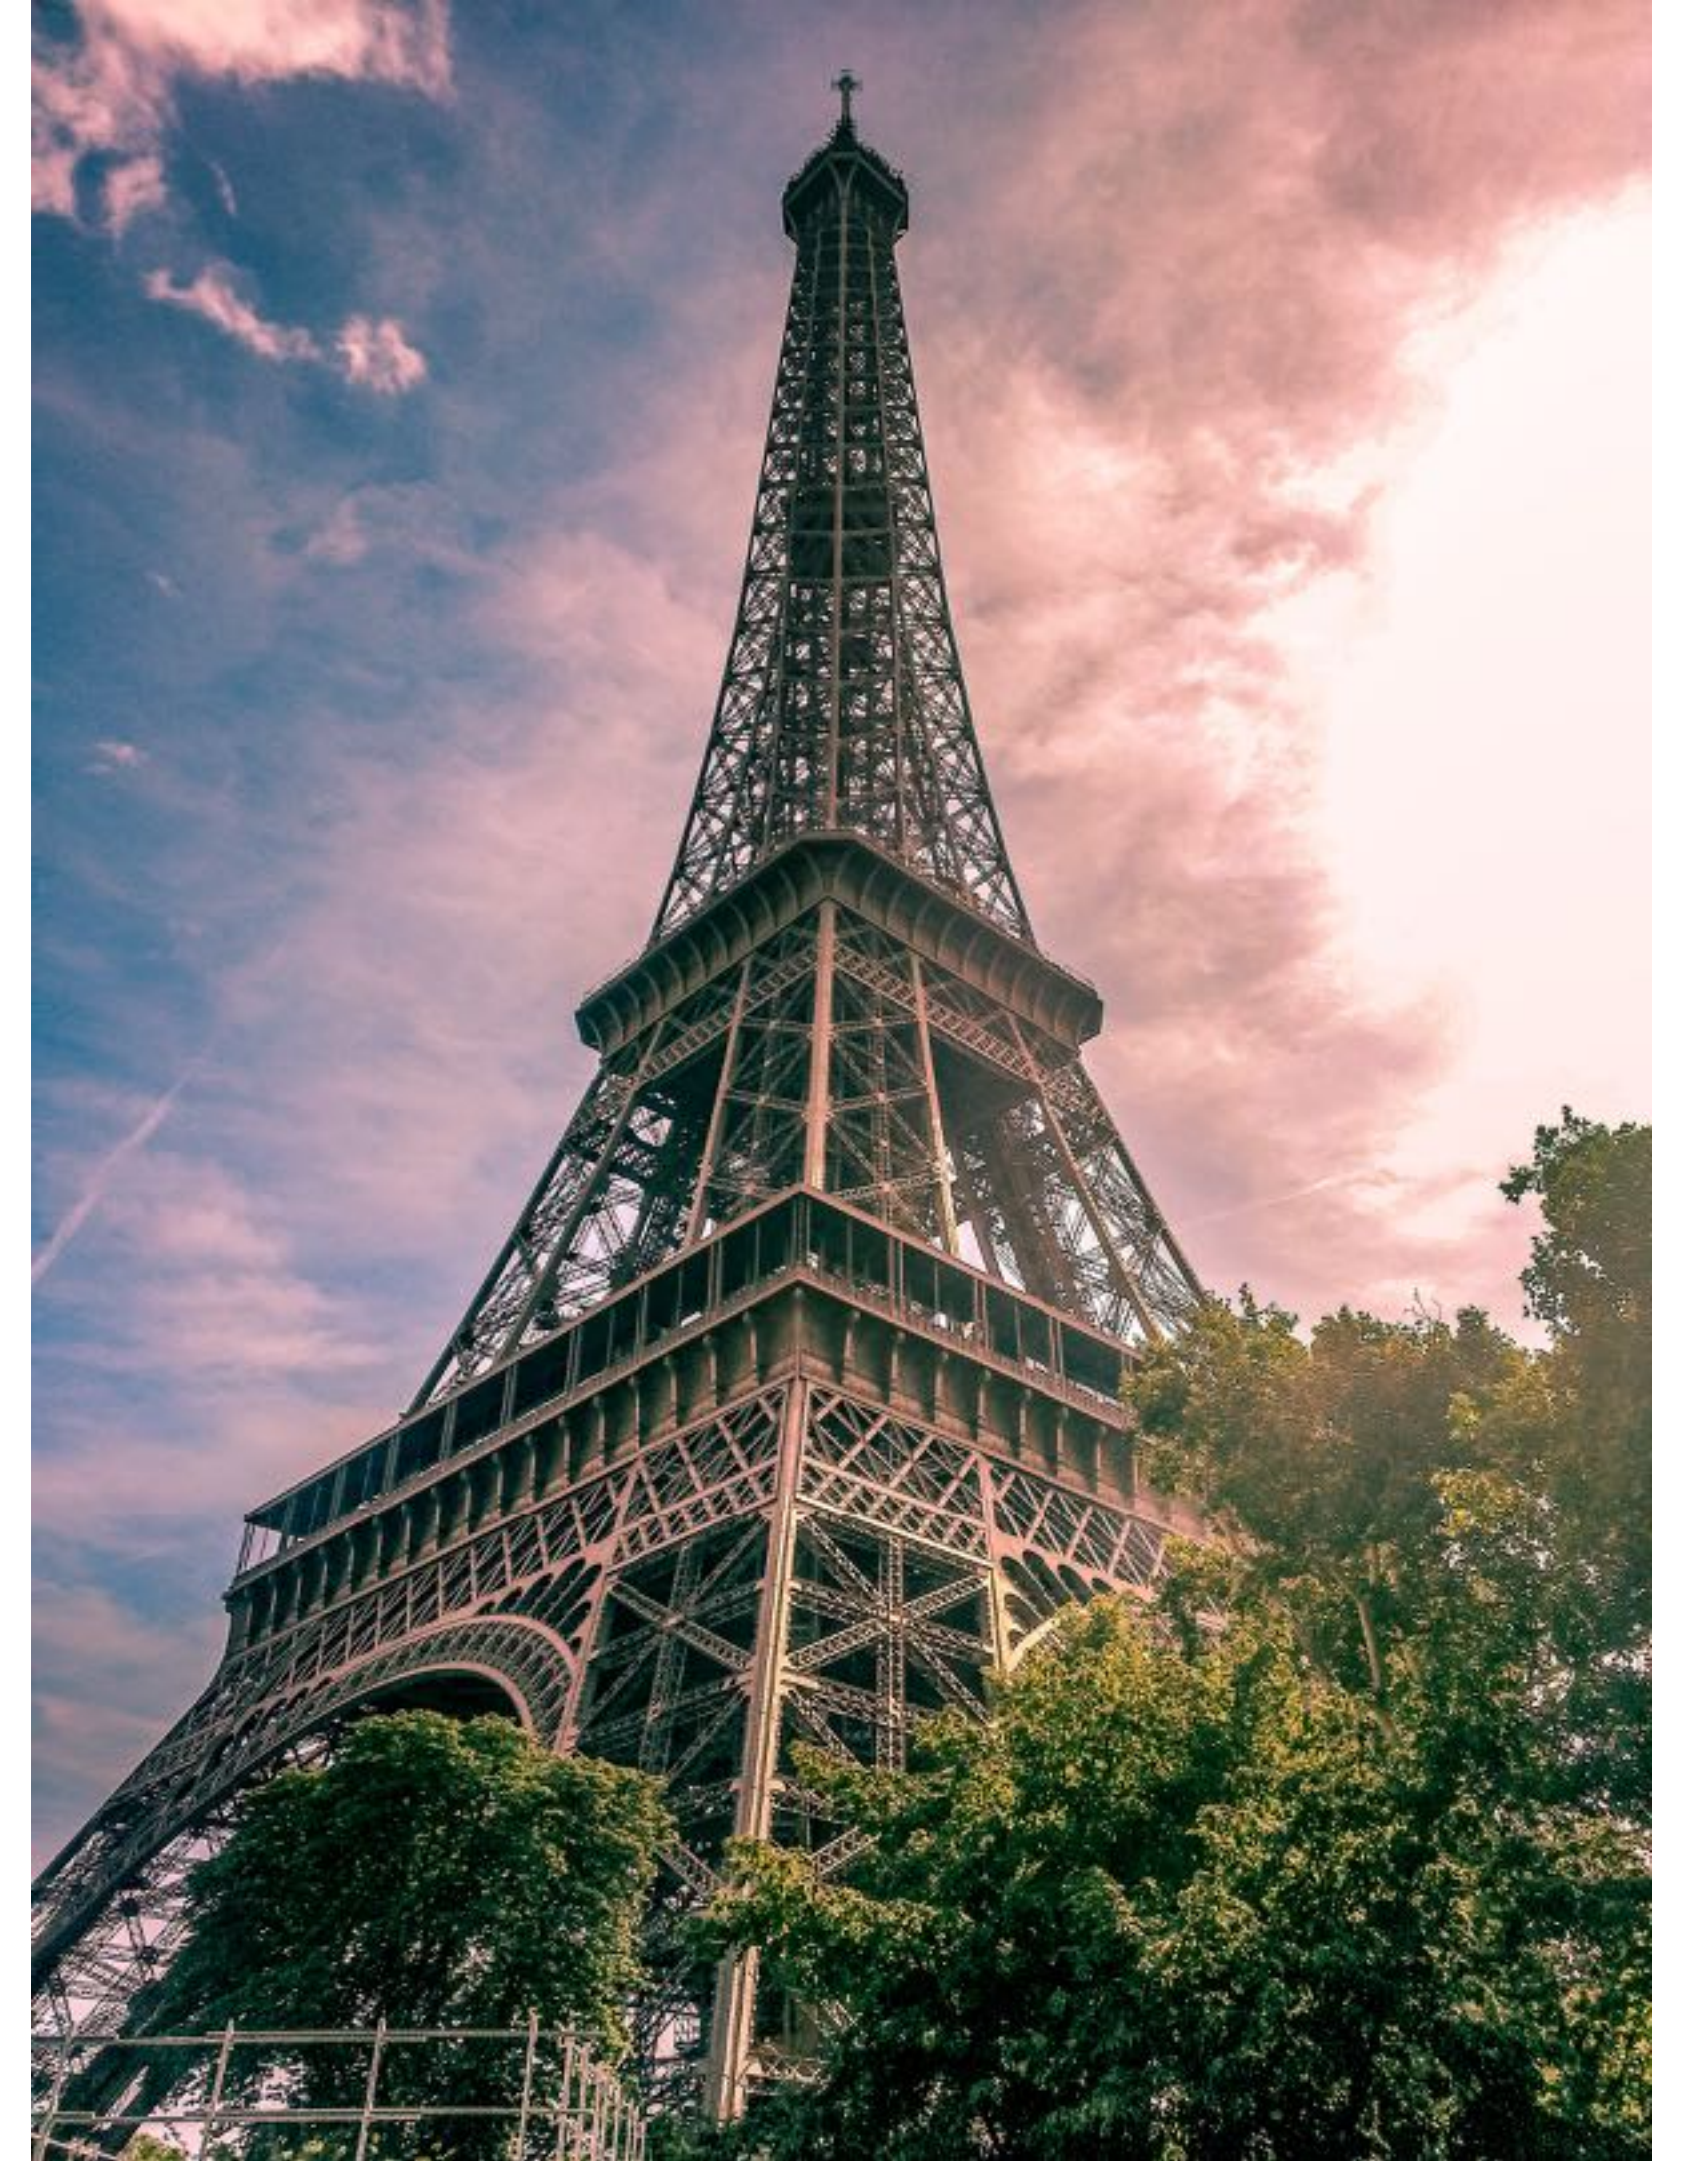

Adjectives

Adjectives describe nouns.

- Adjectives tell us what somebody or something is like
- Comparative and superlative adjectives
- Adjectives follow an order

Examples:

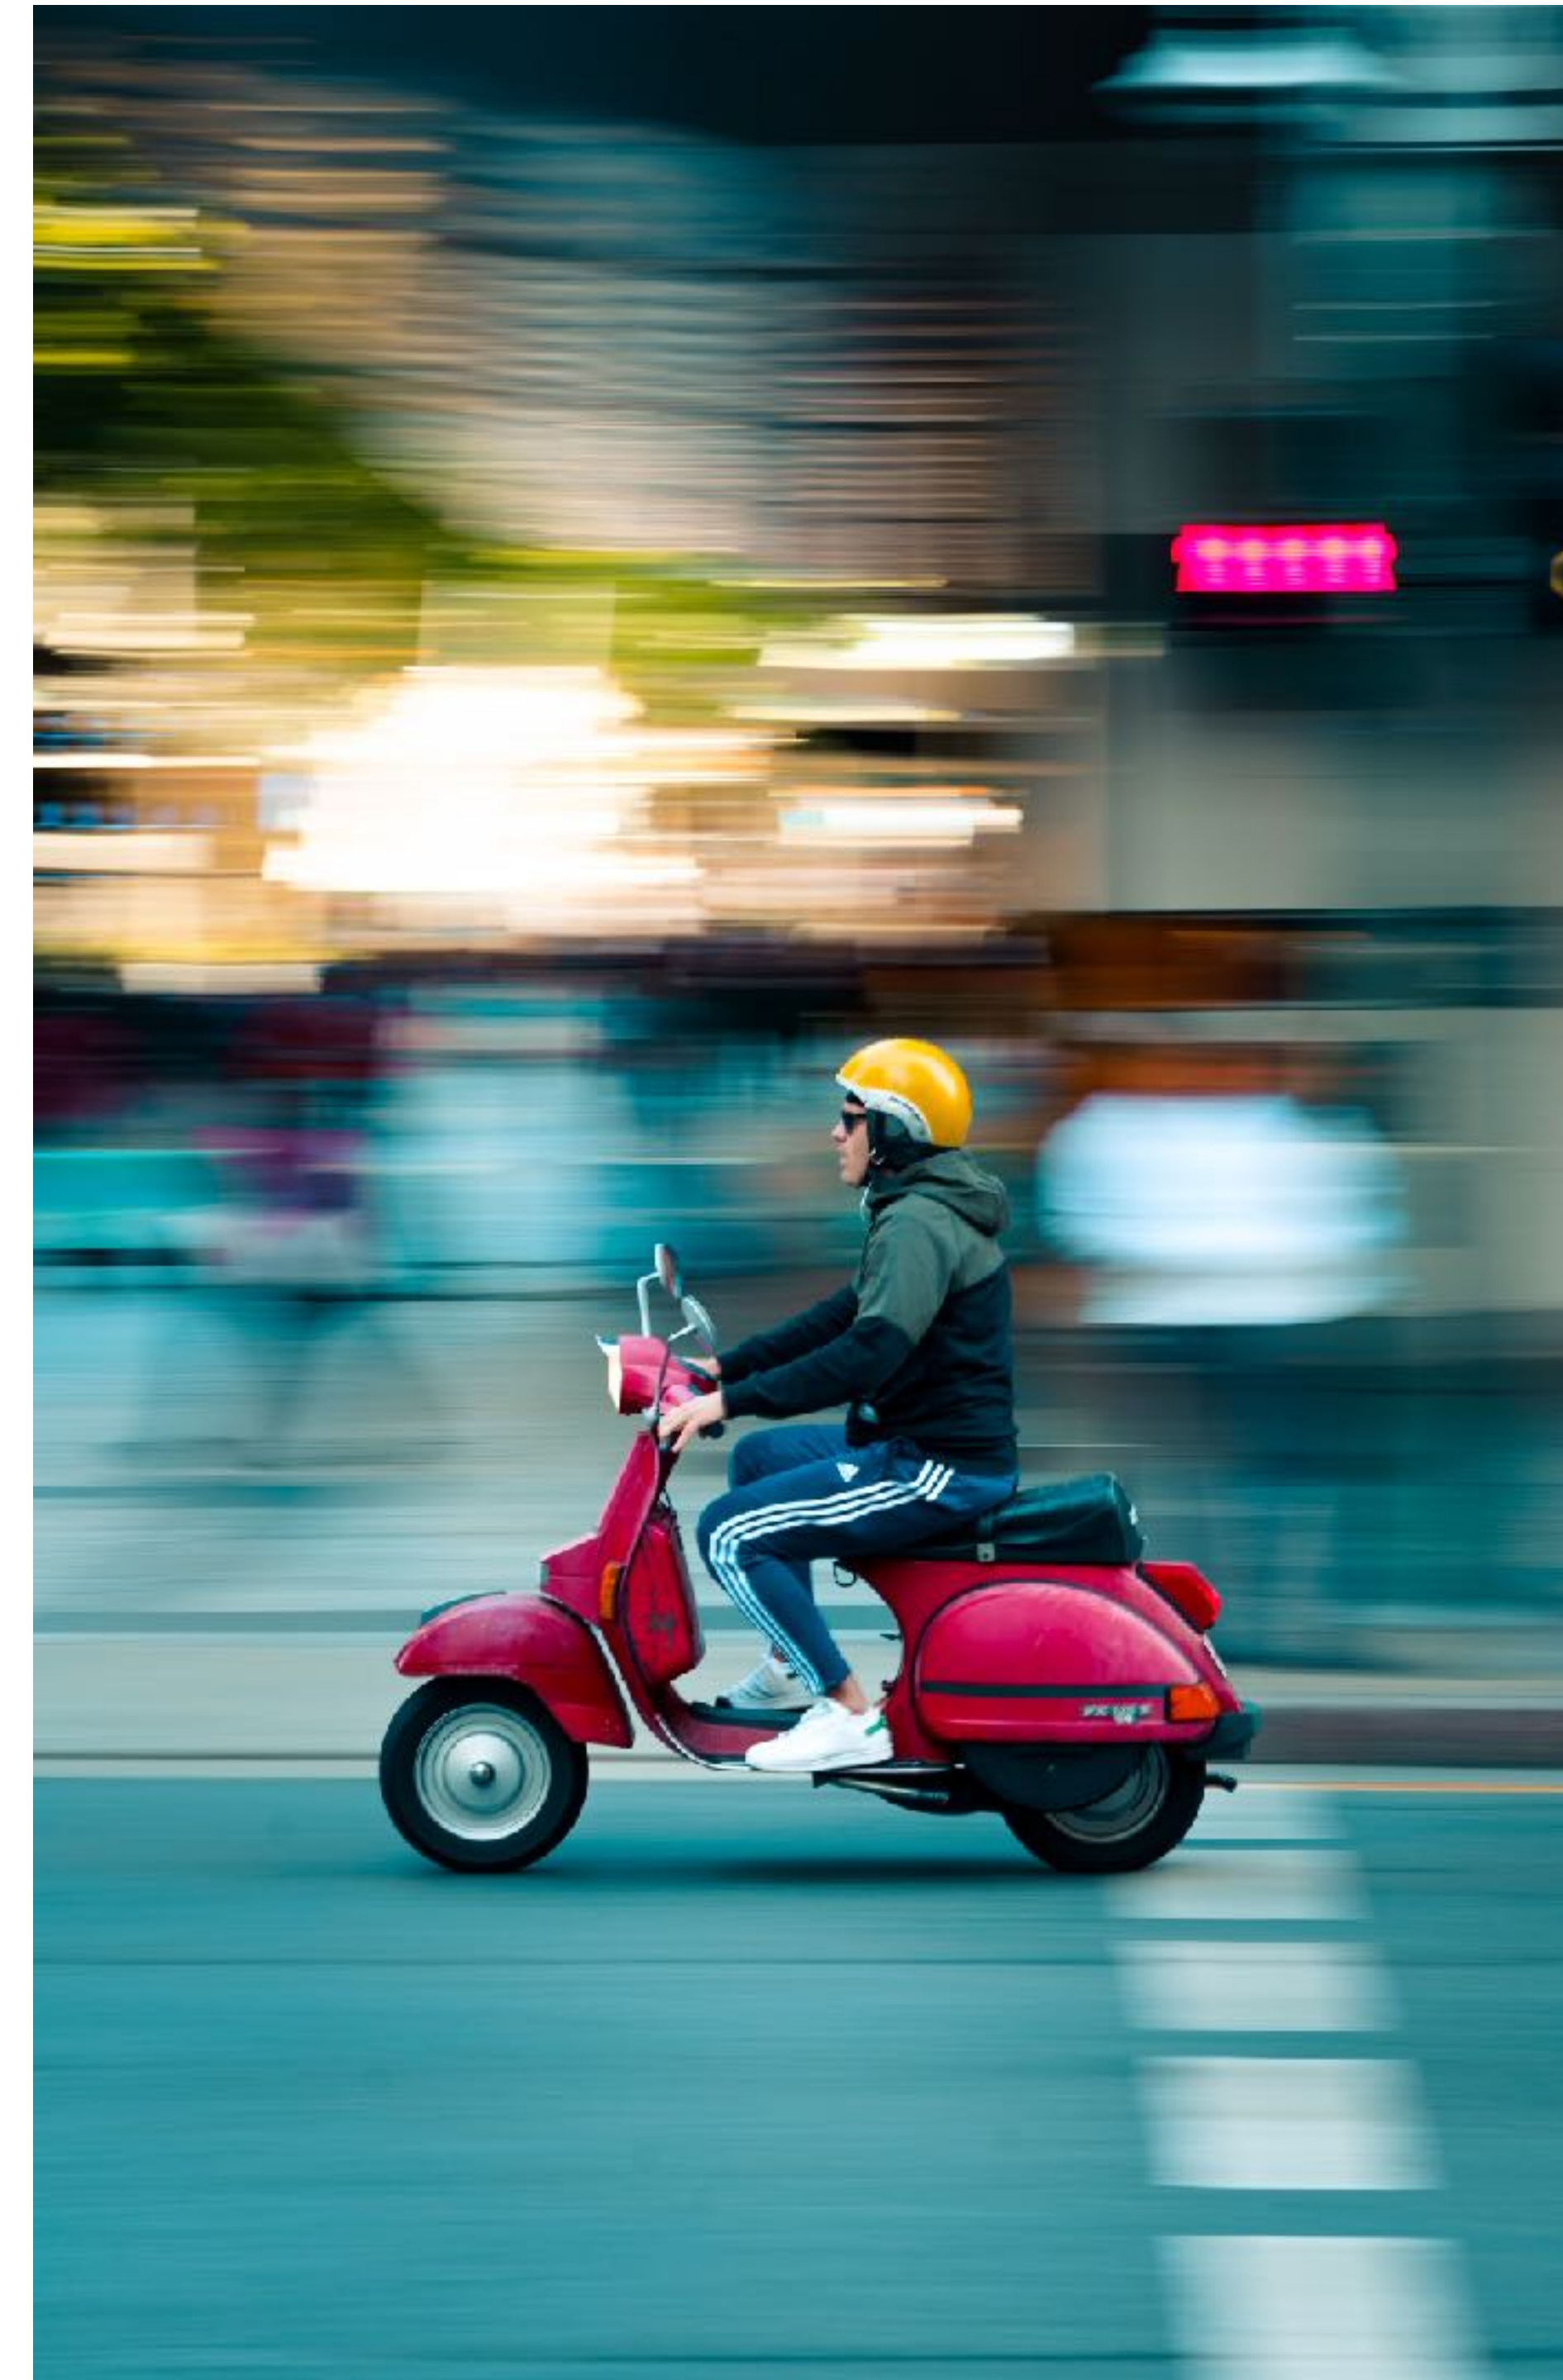

Adverbs

Adverbs describe verbs, adjectives or adverbs.

- There are adverbs of:
 - Manner
 - Place
 - Time
 - Degree

Examples:

Determiners

Determiners introduce nouns.

- Determiners can be:
 - Articles (definite, indefinite)
 - Quantifiers
 - Possessives
 - Demonstrative

Examples:

Pronouns

Pronouns replace nouns.

- Pronouns can be:
 - Personal
 - Possessive
 - Interrogative
 - Reflexive

Examples:

Prepositions

Prepositions are small words that come before nouns.

- Prepositions usually show:
 - direction
 - location
 - time

Examples:

Conjunctions

Conjunctions are joining words.

- Conjunctions can be:
 - Coordinating
 - Subordinating

Examples:

Interjections

Interjections are short exclamations.

- We use interjections mostly when speaking.

Examples:

Name the Parts of Speech

A stylized orange house icon with a triangular roof and a square base, surrounded by several orange diagonal lines representing sun rays. The entire graphic is centered in the background of the slide.

Right Start Newcomer Services

www.rightstartcanada.ca

info@rightstartcanada.ca